

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An increase in size of a device manufacturing apparatus such as an exposure apparatus is suppressed, and at the same time, adverse effects caused by heat generated in a component are effectively prevented. Electrical components are arranged in a duct for flowing temperature adjusting gas, and cables are connected from the electrical components to other electrical components (e.g., a sensor, motor, and the like) arranged outside the duct (A13).